Later this year, we have a four-day stopover in Hong Kong. Neither of us has been there and would like to know the best place/area to stay. We are not shoppers and are more interested in the sights. Should we book a package that includes transfers to our hotel or should we go by train, which I believe is close to the airport into the city

Hong Kong. After shopping, eating is Hong Kong's favourite urban sport.

Pick up a copy of the 2011 WOM guide (womguide.com). This is the complete gastro guide, featuring reviews of more than 2500 restaurants, plus a section devoted to dai pai dongs - the open-air food stalls beloved by gourmands. Afternoon tea at the Peninsula Hotel is another must-do, but this book

Sabaya's greatest fears are hyenas and hunger.
