

ALL THE RIGHT MOVES . . .

■ Central seems to be the location of choice for hoteliers these days. Following in the footsteps of the Landmark Mandarin Oriental and the Four Seasons, young man-about-town Tony Yeung is opening a boutique hotel in LKF Tower (where Finds and Hachi are located). The 95-room design-conscious property is scheduled to open early next year.

■ It seems writing has become a fashionable pursuit for some of our city's top executives. Last month, we reported that GOD's Douglas Young had co-authored Hong Kong: Front Door/Back Door; this issue we reveal that Chanel's Claudia Shaw d'Auriol is launching her first cookbook, Claudia and Dominica: Delicious, with Dominica Yang (see page 44). Goldman Sachs executive director Stephen Wong has written Smithsonian Baseball: Inside the World's Finest Private Collections, based on his lifelong passion of collecting baseball artifacts. The book features 21 of the best private collections of baseball memorabilia in existence, with a forward by Jane Forbes Clark, chairman of the National Baseball Hall of Fame and Museum. Ex-banker and owner of Oriental Path Fergus Fung and two friends have released the city's first survey-based dining-out guide, WOM Hong Kong Restaurant Guide. Love it or hate it, you can rate a restaurant at www.womguide.com. By the way, WOM stands for 'word of mouth', if you haven't figured that out.

TALKIES

Wm
wordomouth

Featured in Talkies Magazine
October 2005